

Loyens & Loeff - London

A touch of gold for a leading international legal and tax firm.

Overview

With offices in their home judiciary markets, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg, and Switzerland, Loyens & Loeff are a leading international legal and tax firm with a presence in key financial centres worldwide.

The firm's London branch recently moved to its third location in the City, since first opening there in 1993. Better suited to the business's vision for the future and opting for a boutique hotel-inspired design, the 15 Austin Friars location is designed to be both modern and classic. Rejecting the traditional and formal perceptions of law firm offices, the new location has been transformed into somewhere that combines corporate function with a homely feel, inviting to staff and visitors.

The Challenge

The new office needed to be future-proofed: From the technology and infrastructure to their water dispensing, it was important that every detail was considered, and quality products installed.

Social and entertainment space: Loyens & Loeff envisioned an office/event hybrid that would allow for a broad functionality.

The Solution

The Billi tap is part of a larger multi-functional space, carefully considered to fulfill the more social aspects the office needed to include. The kitchen/breakout space is designed to transition from everyday staff use to breakfast seminars and evening networking events. As a central hub for refreshments and internal collaboration, the space can integrate with a large meeting room through the clever use of bi-fold door partitioning which allows for complete flexibility to break up or maximise the areas to suit any function.

"When designing the new office, one of the main priorities was to be able to meet, network and collaborate with both clients and visiting colleagues from our other offices. We wanted those spaces to be smart and clean without any need to hide certain areas from view.

The Billi tap we had installed was an integral feature of our new breakout space. The biggest appeal was its multi-functionality and aesthetics. Not only does the tap provide instant hot water, eliminating the need for a kettle, it also includes a sparkling and still water function as well. Furthermore, the modern simplicity of the tap fits into the room's sleek, clean design perfectly."

"We love our Urban Brass XL tap. It was a product that fitted in perfectly with the other high-quality brass details throughout the office including handles, wall sockets and light fittings"
